SPEECH IN NEW YORK BY WM. HOWARD DAY.

A colored man. Read it ye who would wrongfully and wickedly deprive the colored man of citizenship.

Facts never falsify, and there they rise majestic as their own mountains—and as firm—meeting taunts and jeers with a respectful but bold denial. The waters that beat the base of the Blue Mountains emblem were the assaults upon the new system of freedom for a hundred years; and successive floods, the crests of ocean, have attempted to hurl the mountains from their seat, but a hundred years hence the mountains will be there still—smiling at the indignant murmur of the receding, wearied waves. And when men and mothers even, 6,000 years old, shall add another and another 6,000 to their years, and they shall again a year, be crumbled down to dust, then shall liberty walk there as here in majesty, the goddess of those islands, and the handmaid of God. Rest, Col. Shaw, rest, rest, brave brothers of Fort Wagner; rest from the storm of battle, and the stern storm of hate. All is past now. Ye sleep; but we to-day enjoy because of you, and we come to-day to lay our humble tribute on your memory. In olden days this cairn was heaped high by those who survive; but our cairn ye yourselves have piled up, your great souls flinging their dead bodies in heaps, that we might climb up to the high honors and privileges, the National rights and duties of to-day. Accept our thanks, Wagner and Olmsted, Port Hudson and Milliken's Bend; accept our thanks, colored men, living and dead for every battle. Oh! shadowy forms now passing before me, as ye have lived and died to secure rights and privileges, so we live and die to preserve them. Accept our thanks, our brave white brothers—soldiers in one army—brothers in a common cause; accept our thanks, thou who didst teach the nation emancipation proclamation—John C. Fremont, pathfinder for the nation and pathfinder for us; accept our thanks, Gen. Hunter, for proclamation and organization; thanks to thee, thou bold son of Massachusetts, author of the new dictionary of contrabandism, Maj. Gen. Benj. F. Butler; thanks to Gen. Godfrey Weitzel—to him as the only officer who allowed our brave Louisiana brothers a place in line of battle, and who thus enabled our brave black brother, Capt. Cailloux, to seal their work with brains and blood, with blood as largely given as his great heart could furnish it; brains and blood are the only seal a soldier knows. There was that young man, Sergt. Brown, only seventeen years of age, who upheld the standard till he fell; then he says: "turn me over; tell my mother I died with my face to the enemy." And there was the brave Planchiancho, who tore the old flag from the shattered staff to save it, and thus re-wrote the world's history. Nationally as regards the people of the land, as was said of Kosciuszko, so we write of him: Not vain, alas! not vain, ye gallant few. From rank to rank your volleys thunder flew. Oh! grandest picture in the book of Time! Though negroes fell, unwept without a crime; Found not a generous friend, a pitying foe, Strength in their arms, but mockery in their woe!

Tearing their banners from the shattered staff, They won a memory o'er which angels laugh! Freedom then rang her wild alarm bell— A rose rose up where Planchiancho fell!

Thanks in this new photograph to the all the Lincolnnotes the bloody hand has been created. Thanks to Grant, to Sherman, even with his prejudices, Thomas, Rosecrans and Canby. Thanks to all. Thanks to the Cabinet of 1863. Thanks to Secretary Stanton, the atlas of war secretaries. Thanks to Vice-President Johnson for the promise of leadership up from Egypt to Canaan. Thanks to President Lincoln for leadership from Egypt to the wilderness. Four years ago there was no safe resting place for the sole of your foot here. You were driven to seek shelter under the wing of monarchy. Like Mrs. Barrett, Browning's fugitive slave at Pilgrimage Point, who stood with one foot resting on that rock, the two-footed bloodhounds behind, and the sea before you. As a mother with a babe on your arms you stood bewildered, angered, crazed, until you twisted the shawl and smothered out the little life within it, and sent it back again to the bosom of your God—and then turned to curse the sons of the pilgrims who first landed there. There was no rest for you anywhere. Now the inner man—the soul itself—may feel itself girt around and protected by walls of steel. Two hundred thousand bayonets, leaping up in the sunlight, in the hands of colored men, are the glistening pointed reply to the denial of your manhood or citizenship. To-day the black hand dipped in the blood of the rebellion, has wiped out every record against us. The West Indian freedom was secured only by constant individual and associated effort. It began as the result of the success of the action against the slave trade. In 1776 the first movement was made in the British House of Commons in the strength of the new truth, that slave-trade was contrary to the laws of God and thoughts of man. It was held in ab

Home Enterprise.

We are so accustomed to connect the material progress of the city with the above heading, that our readers may almost consider it sacrilegious to associate it with our beautiful cemetery. The building of stores, dwelling houses, factories, educational institutions, and churches, chiefly absorb the thoughts of the living. It is well, amid the never ceasing whirlpool of business pursuits occasionally to turn aside and contemplate our latter end, and make some provision, not only for the welfare of the immortal spirit, but for the perishing and transitory tenement. The present week we visited Highland Cemetery. This prospective city of the dead is viewed with fresh interest every time we visit it. Its attractions grow upon us. We have heretofore described its desirable locality and the origin of the enterprise, and shall not attempt it now. There is no one home enterprise originated in Ypsilanti within the last few years, that ought so much to attract the serious and admiring attention of our citizens as this one of furnishing an inviting burial place for our dead. All honor to the originators of this laudable enterprise. One valuable citizen and leading projector is taking his long tranquil sleep in the spot he so wisely chose. Few cities can boast of a more beautiful cemetery. It has not yet the fame, beauty and richness of ornamentation and poetic association connected with the cemeteries Mt. Auburn or Mt. Hope. But there is the picturesque location, in the engineering or laying out, the elegant in detail, the greenward and the woodland, pleasant in all its aspects, if not yet in artistic memorial. Here is a burial place, available to our citizens, elevated in location, varied in surface, with much of forests and much of clear, open exposure to the bright sunshine, serene and sunny, happily picturing the shores of the "better land." These last days of summer, the soft breezes sweep lovingly over its undulating surface, the sunshine glistens on the greenward, umbrageous forest trees invite to peaceful sedation, and the sympathetic oaks murmur gently their mournful lull. All sights and sounds conspire to render its sunny walks and quiet shades a bourn to which the mind may gladly turn.

"When thoughts Of the last bitter hour come like a blight Over the spirits, and sad images Of the stern agony, and shroud and pall, And breathless darkness, and the narrow house, Make us to shudder and grow sick at heart."

It is a place that wins, not repels—the abode of beauty and repose—and, as all burial places should, robs death of much of its unwelcome sadness.

The cemetery is under the supervisory care of the Board of Trustees, embracing the following gentlemen:

A. S. WELCH, President,

F. K. REYNOLDS, Clerk,

D. B. AGAR, Treasurer,

E. Shogerman, M. L. Shuts,

H. Bateholder, J. L. Rappleye,

D. Quirk, Thomas Nide,

The condition of the grounds at this early day in the enterprise shows that they are faithfully applying the limited means at their disposal for improving and beautifying them.

Now is a favorable time to select lots, while there is ample opportunity to gratify choice.

From $8,000 to $10,000 have been expended in the purchase of the land and improvement, and there is room for the expenditure of several thousands more.

The burial place of her who gave us being and in infancy sang us lullabys and nurtured the aspirations of early youth and later manhood—next to the abode of the living, where dwell the family group, this habitation, this beautiful village of the dead, claims and has our profoundest veneration and tender watch-care.

The New Railroad.

There has been a meeting held at Toledo to further the proposed road between Holly and Toledo. Mr. Wm. H. Patterson, of Saline, ably presented the matter, and in fact seemed to be the ruling spirit of the Convention. W. S. Maynard, of Ann Arbor, president. The projectors of the enterprise seem to take hold of it with spirit. If it succeeds we must tap it at Saline, the Jackson and Toledo at Clinton, and the Detroit & Milwaukee at Pontiac, or some other westerly point, and so on North.

Real Estate Sales.

J. S. Jenness, house and lot on Huron St. to Mrs. Sarah Gay—$3,250.
L. D. Norris, his former residence, house and four lots on River St.—$3,000.
J. R. Campbell, house and lot on River St.—$2,500.

The Union School.

The annual meeting of School District No. 5, will take place Monday evening, Sept. 4th, for the election of three members of the Board, and such other business as may be brought before the meeting. The fall term of the institution will commence on Tuesday Sept. 5th.

Benefit Concert Proposed.

We understand that some of our prominent musicians propose soon to give a concert for the benefit of Mr. A. George. The proceeds will be used to obtain an artificial arm for Mr. G. We wish the enterprise abundant success.

F. C. LaRose &amp; Co.

The above firm, successors to C. L. Yost, are doing a good business. They are good workmen and do up carriage trimming tip-top. See advertisement and call and see them at their harness Store on Cross St.

Returned.

Professor Welch has returned from a tour in Georgia and Florida. Our readers would be glad to receive his impressions of the present condition and future prospects of those States.
